Subject: Anne Buttimer's database
Twice this week I/our agency have had occasion to appear mildly foolish in dealing with either an outside agency (Metro-Dade Police) or individual (Richard Manuel) because I was completely unaware that Anne had previously contacted them/him. It may be that I wouldn't have been aware of these previous contacts even if I had access to Anne's computer files (since I might not have thought to check); and it is also true that Dave is very good about checking for me anytime I ask him to. And it may be another six months before this happens again. But I thought I should make you aware that there is a least somecost associated with keeping that database restricted.I know there are other factors to consider; I'm not so much arguing for access to Anne's database as making sure you have all the relevant facts before you as you make your own decisions on the matter. FYI only. No reply necessary.
