Subject: Ed Butler -- INCA
Ed Butler finally called back at 4:15 this afternoon. He has, in fact, been receiving all of my messages, but just has not returned my calls. He explained to me, as he did to Anne, that many of the INCA files were submerged in water when Lake Ponchartrain flooded. He said that many of the INCA files are in dead storage at the Records Management and Protection, Inc., warehouse. I told him that I was quite familiar with the Records Management warehouse and that I would be there for a large portion of next week. He said that he would meet me at the warehouse on Tuesday around noon to talk about the INCA files. He told me that INCA now has new office space in the Central Business District. The office has storage space and he is hoping to be able to move the files into the new office. He doesn't think that the move of the files will occur until later in August. He told me that he did not want to give his originals to us and I told him that although I was not sure, I thought we might be able to take copies, as we are with the MCC. He then asked whether we were assuming the costs of making the MCC copies and I told him that we were.
