Subject: Annual Report

To: Chet Rhodes/ARRBcc: From: Chet Rhodes/ARRB Date: 01/13/97 08:10:40 PMSubject: Annual ReportDevelopment of Computer SystemThe large number of records to be reviewed by the Board and staff required the development of a computer system that could track the thousands of documents to be reviewed with the tens of thousands of redactions. The sophisticated "frontload" computer system is a critical component for the Board members and the analysts. All records and redactions are tracked on the system through every stage of the process. The nature of the system enables the retrieval of information that is needed for the various reports that are required by law. The computer system developed by the staff of the agency has been successful in tracking the documents reviewed by the board. New items added over the past year allow for complete reporting to the National Archives of the postponements in each document. Several new databases have been created to allow the the Board and staff to target parts of collections of agencies the should receive attention first. Also the Board and Staff have Internet Email accounts that allow researches and the public to receive information from the ReviewHERE SOME TEXT LET ME KNOW IF YOU NEED MORE.DAVID CAN HELP AS WELL Chet,Here is the Annual Report Section. It needs to be updated and more descriptive -- Especially with all those wonderful and ingenious changes you've made.Thanks,Thom
