The Links are professional women who attempt to provide exposure & opportunities to people. They were established in 1946 & have chapters all over the US, one in Germany & some in Africa; about 15k members in total. My understanding is that they perform(ed) the following :- annual career development for high school students- annual debutante program- medical services (glaucoma testing, blood pressure testing, etc...)- national/international transient services- exposure of young people to the arts- annual walk-a-thon- collect school supplies for schools in Africa- tutor/mentor through Project Lead- collected clothing for residents of the Cape Verde Islands All I do, is help out from time to time (usually talk about criminology during their annual Career Symposium & might do a workshop on crime threats & today's women (specifically college women) for their debutantes... This year's theme is: "Physical + Social + Mental + Spiritual Health = The Strength To Carry On" ... The shelter needs stuff like: soap, toothpaste/toothbrushes, deodorant, combs, etc...
