Subject: Military Team Weekly Update

Here is my input covering this past Wednesday (April 9) through this morning (April 10th). NSA documents:-On the 85 documents previously placed before the Board and voted on, NSA has asked the Board to reconsider 7 of them. SCI issues are involved. (Review Track has been input on all but 12 of the original 85 documents. Following the Board Meeting, that unfinished business, plus the results of the Board's decisions on the 7 reconsiderations will be input also.)-NSA has also couriered over to us 49 new documents, of which 32 are consent releases, and 17 are documents for which NSA wants to withhold names of employees. Chris and I plan to commence processing these documents in review track this afternoon, and expect to complete the review track process on these 49 documents prior to the April 23-24 Board Meeting.Presentation: Chris and I have mutually agreed that he will present NSA documents to the Board at the upcoming meeting, since my SCI clearance will either not be in hand yet, or will be such a last minute occurrence that I will not have time to familiarize myself with the 7 documents under reconsideration. Presumably, this will be the last time he will have to do so.Califano Papers:-Joe Masih's letter to Linda Dean was signed out April 15th requesting the assistance of Randy Rakers (security manager at Military History institute at Carlisle Barracks), during the April 28-May 9 window between Board meetings, in declassifying as many of these papers as possible, and in identifying 3rd agency equities. (Note: Randy Rakers is also in possession of some FBI documents with Army equities which were passed to him previously by Wray and Masih, which we intend to ask him to bring with him to the initial declassification session.)PTC (Pentagon Telecommunication Center) Records:-Joe Masih has been matching the RIFS which were recently printed with the actual documents. There are a few holes in the dike: of a total of approximately 380 documents, approximately 340 or so can be physically matched now, ready for transmission to NARA--but some are still classified CONFIDENTIAL and will require Randy Rakers' attention when he visits ARRB, and others are CIA documents which need to be sent to HRG for declassification. Our present intentions are to hold all of the PTC materials at ARRB until these 3rd party equities are resolved, so that the collection can be transferred to NARA intact.DIA:-Joe Masih is still pressing to obtain access to their SF 135s, so we can examine for ourselves what types of records have been (or have not been) transferred to Suitland.Department of the Army I.G.: -Joe Masih is pressing them to deal with equities in the Richard Case Nagell file prior to the May 12 Board Meeting.Dr. David Vanek:-Christopher completed our business with him by finally connecting in a complicated game of phone tag. No further action required re: Dan Marvin's allegations about David Vanek; Vanek has made his statement, and researchers are free to decide what they will.Miscellaneous:-Christopher wrapped-up the latest Noblesville H.S. intern project, after Record
