Subject: Review Track Problem--Supervisor's Review
A strange phenomenon occurred today in an NSA document which has been passed to the Board: # 1441000110094. Originally, there were 8 postponements. I decided to edit some of them, and make minor corrections to the spacing, or location, of the redactions. In the case of one of the corrected redactions, # 1-1, after I made the correction, the summary total of the no. of postponements changed from 8 to 7, and this particular postponement disappeared when I double-clicked on the document number! However, when you go into Review Track and request "Expand" under View, the summary shows 8 line items, and all 8 postponement #s, even though the summary total next to the document # says there are only 7. Something is hosed, and neither Christopher, I, nor Jeremy can figure it out. I forwarded the document to the Board anyway, since I could see all 8 postponement #s listed under the document # in Review Track. If I have thoroughly confused you, I can show you in person.
