The Chief of Naval Operations has one outstanding office, the Navy Historical Center. They will be providing an interim while the Historical Center continues to search through documents. The Marine Corps has over a 100 cubic feet of boxes and materials yet to go through. They have requested more time on the order of approximately 5 months to go through some of this material. While I know that may not be possible how much extra time can we give them to continue to sort through some of this information? Christopher L.
