Subject: Follow-up on our conversation of yesterday morning
As of 1993, former Assistant Director of the FBI Alex Rosen was alive and living in Akron, Ohio. Carol can give us his address if we decide to pursue an interview with him. You had asked about a "135" classification number. Carol has a book that lists all classification numbers currently in use as well as classification numbers that the FBI previously used, but has discontinued. The book does not list a "135" classification. The numbers skip from "134" to "137" and it is not unusual for numbers to be skipped in the list. I will read through the FBI Manual later this week (post-Board meeting) to see what else I can find and, of course, we can still pick Phil's brain tomorrow!
