Subject:	Re: Laptop Computer for Sale
Body:	I ran the ad by the computer guy here and this is what he said. Personnally, I think it might be a little expensive.LATo: Andrew Funk/ARRBcc: From: Peter Voth/ARRBDate: 06/23/98 10:34:38 AMSubject: Re: Laptop Computer for Sale>Texas Instruments Extensa 575CD laptop for sale:I haven't heard anything about how TI is on customer support/quality, so I don't know>Pentium 100It's about a notch or two behind state-of-the-art, but not at all bad>16 MB RAM16MB seems to be the minimum that a computer comes with nowadays, but should be sufficient to do what needs to be done. >730 MB HDThis might be a little small. Windows applications (and Windows95 itself, if the machine comes with it) take up a lot of space on the hard drive. >28.8 Modem56.6 is pretty standard now, but if she doesn't plan to do much heavy-duty internet work it should be fine. My old computer had a 14.4, which was slow but workable.>CD>Carrying Case>Asking $1000.00I'm not so good at pricing machines, so I'm not sure if this is a good deal. It smells like it's on the high side of reasonable, though.Basically, it should be a good machine if she'll be doing mainly word processing and number crunching and won't be doing much multimedia/internet work with it.
