Subject:	Re: Correction
Body:	You know, I have to admit - I use the term "guys" all the time and I consider myself an active and aware feminist. I've always thought it was just a midwestern thing - they say "y'all" here and I say "you guys." I never really thought it was a big deal, but last fall, I was talking to this lesbian couple and I said something like "Why don't you guys just fax it to me....?" and they said "you guys?" So, I've been thinking of coming up with an alternative term. Any ideas? ("y'all" is never going to be part of my vocabulary...)To:A&Rcc: From:Noelle Gray/ARRBDate:06/15/95 09:06:33 AMSubject:CorrectionOkay, so my brain is not really up to speed yet today. I meant the file number and the name of the file (ex e\:wp-docs\stuff) should be at the BOTTOM of the LAST page of the document. Sorry. A&R will be having a meeting soon to go over the new format for correspondence so just hang in until then. Thank you for you cooperation guys (non-gender specific term).
