Subject: Re: The memo - once again

P.S. You should ask Jeremy whether he wants you to talk about the liability of the United States & what would be involved in a suit involving the Govt, but I think you should wait until you finish the memo, have me read it, then give it to him, and then see if he needs add'l info.

Here is yet another section for your review. I think I once again over-researched the topic. I finally stopped writing the part outlining the full process of review under the FTCA b/c I wondered if it was too complex and if anybody cared. Basically, as far as I can tell the Board and the members will not be liable under the FTCA for the release of documents. However, the United States may be substituted as the defendant so it doesn't necessarily provide complete immunity. Should I analyze the U.S.'s liability and what would be involved in a suit involving the Government?
