I think you should get back to her quickly about her mistakes so that we are not inundated with misguided comments.

 Date: 02/08/98 06:21:35 PM GMTSubject: ARRB - Work to be completedTo all: The amount of paper released through the ARRB work over the past few years has been enormous, yet the manner in which the Archives has been cataloging and filing this information makes it more than a full time job to understand where complete specific documents reside. For example, if the ARRB has a document of 25 pages in full, but it requires 12 postponements and partial releases, each page released without exclusions will reside in a different NARA file number and location. Unfortunately, the same page of the full document could even have been assigned a different Agency File Number - so there are duplicates, as well as additions, that cannot be cross referenced! Add to this the typos, abbreviations and aka's (Ruth Paine can be found under RHP, Mrs. Paine, Ruth Hyde Paine, Ruth Hyde, Mrs. Michael Paine, RP - just to name a few!) Also, I have been told that the NARA Web site for the JFK Collection has not been updated for two years. The ARRB's mandate included classification of the collection at the National Archives in a manner which would allow public access to the records. Before the ARRB disbands, I think it would be helpful for us to know that the NARA collection will be funded to bring the entire collection up to date on line and contain an adequate system of cross-referencing to more readily identify threads of documents. If you agree, I urge each of you to write to the ARRB on this issue as your earliest opportunity. E mail address: (Eileen.Sullivan@jfk-arb.gov) Thanks Nancy WertzBndt@msn.com
