 Dear Mr. Bigelow, Thank you for your correspondence regarding the acoustic evidence. To answer your questions, you can obtain copies of items in the JFK Collection from the National Archives. If you would like to send your request by e-mail, the address is inquire@nara.gov.  Subject: Possible Acoustic Gunshot Evidence__??
 There exists a most interesting and authentic sounding recording of gunshots, at the moment of the JFK assassination, in a Dallas radioreporters live broadcast from near Dealy Plaza. My impression is that he was located on or near the railroad bridge over Elm street. This audio must be in the public record, as it has been used in at least two television documentaries that I recently viewed. One was the PBS/Nova presentation entitled "Who Shot President Kennedy?" and the other is British producer Nigel Turner's production of "The Men Who Killed Kennedy". I hope I am not a victim of some subtle audio mixing by someone to enhance the dramatic effect of their footage, but my repeated examination of the sound track seems to discount this since the two productions have identical sounding audio tracks. Unless they shared the audio source which had previously had shot sounds dubbed in, they seem to corroborate the authenticity of the broadcast audio. I believe this is worthy of further examination, and I wish I could get an opinion from researcher Gary Mack of the Sixth Floor Assassination Museum in Dallas. But I cannot seem to locate his address. Specifically, the gunshot sounds are heard during the radio reporters coverage which is included within the first three minutes or so of the Nova TV production. Radio coverage includes the statement that "The President's car is now turning onto Elm street, and it will be a matter of minutes till he reaches the speaking engagement at the Trade Mart." Immediately following that last word, Mart..are two faint but distinct gunshot sounds, that are in the clear, between his statements. They are very difficult to hear unless one is alerted to them, indeed, I overlooked them at least 9 or 10 times viewing this program, before I realized they were heard there. There is no audible evidence of editing or sound mixing to create these sounds, and they are not pronounced enough to create any dramatic effect, in my opinion. So I must conclude in my amateur judgement that they are real evidence. I would hope that someone could check this out, or refer me to Mr. Mack, or other research sources for an opinion. I would be most interested in the results. If you can help, or are interested in this, I'd be most grateful. I'd also be interested in how to obtain photographic, audio, and document archives materials for my own record.
