Subject: Re: D Magazine

Below you will see a note from Max Holland. He is writing a piece for D Magazine (D as in Dallas) for the 35th anniversary. His article will be about the ARRB and what we have released. His deadline falls prior to the dissemination of the final report, and he would like to talk to you, some Board members, and perhaps key staff members. What do you think?

So I guess that means I should talk to individual staff members like I did last time.(Remember, you set me up to talk with Phil Golrick and the guy doing work on military intelligence last time, when I wrote a piece for the Washington Spectator). I guess I should also talk to the Judge and one or two of the other board members. Who of the staff members would you suggest (in addition to Jeremy, naturally)? Lastly, besides the medical depositions are there other gems you will be releasing prior to close of business that I might consider working in? Don't bother answering before you go off for the weekend. No hurry

here.Regards,Max_____You
