RE: DIA SF-135s
Date: April 25, 1997

During my initial review of the DIA SF-135s I highlighted the accessions most relevant to the JFK Act.

I based my search on the following criteria: Time frame, series description and size of the accession. My use of the latter was only considered when an accession covered a time frame of over ten years or the accession description was so vague and the size inordinately large that a search would be time consuming and possibly reveal little to nothing in the way of assassination records.

I have divided the accessions into three categories with the first being the most targeted search, likely to reveal records and consuming little time. The second and third being progressively broader searches, likely to uncover fewer records.

Category 1

Accession #	Series Description	Year(s)	Size (boxes)
373-61A2056	Naval Attache Reports ONI	50-59	1
373-66A3216	Army Intelligence Reports	63	1
373-66A3674	Navy Intelligence Reports ONI	63	1

Category 2

373-66B3527	AirForce Intelligence Reports	63	24
373-66C3527	AirForce Intelligence Reports	63	40
373-79-0049	Correspondence	62-65	1

Category 3

373-84-0089 A	Intelligence Report	61-73	4
373-84-0089 C	Intelligence Report	61-73	2
373-84-0089 E	Intelligence Report	61-73	2
373-84-0089 G	Intelligence Report	61-73	2
373-84-0089 I	Intelligence Report	61-73	1
373-84-0089 K	Intelligence Report	61-73	1

Category 3 (continued)

Accession #	Series Description	Year(s)	Size (boxes)
373-84-0089 M	Intelligence Report	61-73	5
373-84C0089 A	Intelligence Report	61-73	7
373-86-0080	Intelligence Report	61-75	1

While the Air force Intelligence Reports listed in Category 2 are large they do, however, cover the appropriate year. In order to focus the search in this category, we should provide specific topics for DIA to aid their search.

Finally, given the current status of DIA's compliance with the JFK act, ARRB should present a coherent plan to facilitate their future search. The most opportune time would be our as yet unscheduled, upcoming meeting in early May.
