And no others**

Notes: (1) Although some of the above documents were never classified originally, and are thus listed above as "U" for unclassified, they still require either an "unclassified" or "no objection to release" stamp from the Navy before they can be sent to the National Archives for release.

(2) Some documents have instructions affixed that state "automatically declassified after 12 years," etc. They are nevertheless included here for Navy review and declassification processing and marking, because the Review Board staff employs only analysts--not declassifiers--and is not permitted to declassify documents on its own.
