- (1) The numerical portion of symbol numbers will be redacted as a rule.
- (2)

Foreign Relations

- (1) Less weight should be given to the concern that release of information about having "targeted" a particular country in the early 1960's will harm current foreign relations with that country where the "targeted" country:
 - (a) has undergone a significant change in its form of government since the early 1960s.
 - (b) was openly regarded as a Cold War adversary of the United States.
- (2) More weight should be given in the case of a country that was in the 1960's, and is now, regarded as an ally of the United States.
- (3) It is appropriate to protect the numerical portion of classified-source symbol numbers, as the Board has done with unclassified informant symbol numbers.

Sources and Methods
