

January 3, 1997

Johan Garay
305 West Spencer St.
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Mr. Garay:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Yolanda Rosario
206 E. Ontario
Philadelphia, PA 19134

Dear Ms. Rosario:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Paul Dunbar
1445 Riverside Drive
Philadelphia, PA 19158

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Ericka Buchanan
113 West Fisher Ave.
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. Buchanan:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Jovita Ross
5746 N. 5th Street
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. Ross:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Emerson Valente
400 West Tabor Road
Philadelphia, PA 19120-2810

Dear Ms. Valente:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Michelle Muziani
12614 Richton
Philadelphia, PA 19154

Dear Ms. Muziani:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Van Phuloc
321 West Champlost Ave.
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Mr. Phuloc:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Jim Nguyen
201 West Nedro
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Mr. Nguyen:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Linh Nguyen
5725 N. Mascher Street
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. Nguyen:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Patrick Breslin
5515 Marshall
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Mr. Breslin:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Jomaya Santana
5924 N. Leithgow Street
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. Santana:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Christina DiCesari
5824 N. Marshall Street
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. DiCesari:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Lauren Bridges
606 W. Olney Ave.
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. Bridges:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Kafi Clark
2546 N. Douglas Street
Philadelphia, PA 19132

Dear Ms. Clark:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Desiree Robinson
6041 N. 5th Street
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. Robinson:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Lan Danh
421 W. Olney Ave.
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. Danh:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Breyonna Dundee
313 W. Tabor Road
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. Dundee:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Asya Austin
6511 N. Fairhill
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. Austin:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure

January 3, 1997

Fatima Mullins
6054 N. American Street
Philadelphia, PA 19120

Dear Ms. Mullins:

Chairman Tunheim has asked me to respond to your recent letter.

I can appreciate the frustration that you feel and that you have expressed so well in your letter. The Assassination Records Review Board was created to address exactly the doubts and uncertainty that prompted you to write to us. I want you to know that the members of the Board and my colleagues on the staff are doing our best to provide open and complete access to the records that relate to the assassination of President Kennedy.

We have already made great progress. Today there are millions of pages of records available at the National Archives that were not accessible before the passage of the legislation that established the Board. Several thousand previously secret records have been released because of Review Board's actions. While the efforts of the Board may not lead to certainty about what happened on November 22, 1963, it is our goal that, when we complete our work, the American people will have reason to be confident that their government is no longer hiding anything from them about this most tragic event.

Thank you for writing.

David G. Marwell
Executive Director

enclosure