Title: AMERITHRAX; MAJOR CASE 184; 00:WF
Synopsis: To report lead coverage.
Reference: 279A-WF-222936-BEI Serial 327
Administrative: Reference telephone calls between SA and SSA
Enclosure(s): Enclosed for Washington Field/AMX-2/NVRA, are one (1) original and two (2) copies each of FD-302's documenting interviews of on 07/28/2008, 07/29/2008 and 08/01/2008.
Details: Referenced serial requested Philadelphia to locate and interview the manager of the apartments located at and obtain any background information regarding Also, locate and interview and obtain information regarding knowledge of the youtube.com postings and any contact/association with Bruce Edwards Ivins.

On 07/28/2008, while in the process of developing background information on and prior to having conducted the interview, Philadelphia was advised of the urgent necessity to interview that evening. Given the urgency of the situation, Philadelphia did not interview the manager of the apartment building in which resides -

On 07/12/2008, agents and task force officers of the FBI Washington Field Office conducted searches of registered under the names of BRUCE EDWARD IVINS. The searches were authorized under the directorate of search warrants issued by U.S. Magistrate Judge Deborah Robinson, District of Columbia, and were conducted of: a red Dodge passenger van, bearing vehicle identification number (VIN) __________ a blue Saturn four door sedan, bearing VIN __________ and a blue Honda Civic 4 door sedan, bearing VIN __________.

At approximately 6:48 a.m. SA ______ and Postal Inspector ______ met with SA ______ and SA ______ at the search site located at ______ SA ______ provided the keys for what SA ______ believed to be all three (3) of the named vehicles. The Dodge van and the Honda Civic were parked in the driveway of the residence of BRUCE IVINS, and the Saturn was parked in the parking lot of Ft. Detrick, U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases (USAMRIID), south of building 1425, off of Randall Street.

Upon arrival at the residence, the red Dodge van, Maryland license plate: __________ was parked on the north side of the asphalt driveway. The vehicle was unlocked. SA ______ verified the VIN# of the vehicle. SA ______ documented the vehicle’s odometer reading as 123,530 miles. Photographs and a sketch were taken of the vehicle. At approximately 7:06 a.m. the search began. No evidence was recovered during the search; however, a bb gun and stamps were documented on the administrative log as being present in the vehicle. Neither the stamps nor the gun were seized. SA ______ placed a copy of the search warrant on the driver’s seat of the van. The doors of the van were closed and left unlocked and the windows were rolled up. The search of the vehicle concluded at approximately 7:33 a.m.

At approximately 7:45 a.m., SA ______ and PI ______ began processing the Honda Civic. SA ______ verified the VIN# and SA ______ took photographs to document the condition of the vehicle prior to relocating the vehicle to an off-site location for the search. The vehicle was... unlocked and parked on the south side of the driveway of the IVINS' residence. The front passenger tire was flat. No license plates were affixed to the vehicle. PI opened the driver's side door and entered the vehicle to verify that the keys provided by SA were for the vehicle. The keys did turn in the ignition; however, the vehicle would not start. PI exited the vehicle. SA placed the vehicle into neutral gear and the car was loaded onto a flatbed tow truck for transport to the off-site search location. PI escorted the vehicle to the parking lot across from the FBI offsite location at 4640 Wedgewood Boulevard, Frederick, Maryland where the vehicle was searched.

At approximately, 9:30 a.m., prior to the search commencing, SA took photographs of the Honda Civic to document the condition of the vehicle. The search began at approximately 9:40 a.m. In addition to SA, SA and PI, SA and SA were on site at the search location to provide technical support. No evidence was recovered during the search. A copy of the search warrant was placed on the driver's side seat and the search concluded at approximately 10:10 a.m. At approximately 10:40 a.m., the vehicle was reloaded onto the flatbed tow truck and escorted by SA and SA back to the IVINS' residence. PI was at the residence when the vehicle arrived under escort. The vehicle was unloaded onto the south side of the driveway. SA and PI inspected the vehicle for damage - no damage was noted that resulted from the execution of the search warrant. The vehicle was returned to the parked gear and the doors were left unlocked and the windows were rolled up. All activities with the vehicle concluded at approximately 11:00 a.m.

At approximately 8:13 a.m., SA and SA arrived at the parking lot of Ft. Detrick, U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases (USAMRIID) on the south of building 1425 off of Randall Street. The blue Saturn was parked on the east side of the lot in one of the center rows with the front of the car pointing north. The car was unlocked when agents arrived on scene. The car had Maryland license plate number: . SA verified the VIN# and SA took photographs to document the condition of the vehicle prior to relocating the vehicle to the off-site location for the search. After photographs, SA entered the unlocked vehicle and placed the car into neutral gear. The car was then loaded onto a flatbed tow truck for transport to the off-site search location. At approximately 8:27 a.m., SA left the Ft. Detrick property and escorted the vehicle to the parking lot across from the FBI offsite location at 4640 Wedgewood Boulevard, Frederick, Maryland where the vehicle was searched.

At approximately 8:48 a.m. the tow truck arrived at the offsite, the vehicle was downloaded, the car was placed back into the parked gear, and photographs were again taken prior to commencing the search. Search of the vehicle began at approximately 9:00 a.m. Present during the search were SA and SA officers. SA and PI were also on site at the search location to provide technical support. No evidence was recovered during the search. A copy of the search warrant was placed on the driver's side seat and the search concluded at approximately 9:33 a.m. Shortly thereafter, the vehicle was reloaded onto the flatbed tow truck and at approximately 9:57 a.m., was escorted by SA and PI back to the parking lot of Ft. Detrick, U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases (USAMRIID) on the south of building 1425 off of Randall Street. SA and PI advised SA that they inspected the vehicle for damage - no damage was noted that resulted from the execution of the search warrant. SA and PI also advised that the vehicle was returned to approximately the same location, that the doors were locked to secure it, the windows were rolled up, and that a copy of the search warrant was left on the driver's seat. All activities with the vehicle concluded at approximately 10:20 a.m.

At approximately 11:05 a.m., after the searches of the Dodge van, the Honda Civic, and the Saturn were complete, PI returned the keys for the three (3) vehicles to SA.

Anthrax: Handwriting Analysis Refines Investigation Profile

A handwriting analyst has said the person responsible for last fall's anthrax attacks is a white, middle-aged man with a bipolar disorder and a martyr complex and who suffers from sexual dysfunction, the Washington Times reported today (see GSN, April 10).

"At this point, the FBI investigation has been focused on people who have had access to anthrax," said Mark Smith, a handwriting analyst who is familiar with the letters included in the anthrax attacks. "Taking into account the possibility that these characteristics are inherent in the makeup of the perpetrator could greatly reduce the size of the investigation."

The FBI requested Smith's assistance soon after last fall's anthrax attacks, he said. The FBI did not comment on Smith's handwriting analysis of the anthrax letters, according to the Times.

The uniform and pronounced curving of the writing in the anthrax letters indicates that the person who wrote them likely has bipolar disorder, Smith said. "(The sender) probably wrote these letters on a manic high, triggered by the Sept. 11 attacks," he said.

The style of the writing also indicates that the person behind the attacks could suffer from some form of sexual dysfunction, according to Smith. "Anything below the baseline, such as the loops in the letters 'y' and 'g,' traditionally gives insight into sexual characteristics," he said. "In the case of the anthrax letters, there's nothing below the baseline. ... It means there is nothing happening in the sexual zone of the writing, which leads me to believe the anthrax sender is sexually dysfunctional."

The use of block letters could indicate the age of the letter sender because it is a style taught to children from the late 1940s to the mid-1960s, Smith said. The use of all capital letters indicates the sender was trying to demonstrate a sense of power, which is connected with a martyr complex, he added.

Investigators have to be cautious when analyzing the handwriting used in the anthrax letters, however, because there was an obvious attempt to disguise the writing, said handwriting analyst Roger Rubin.

"It's very difficult to pierce the veil of personality when somebody could be trying to disguise themselves," Rubin said. "It's like looking at a mask on a person's face and analyzing the mask instead of the person underneath it" (Guy Taylor, Washington Times, March 18).
The attorney for Steven J. Hatfill says the FBI has asked the former Army researcher, who has been named a "person of interest" in the government's anthrax probe, to submit blood and handwriting samples to investigators.

"The FBI has asked for a handwriting sample and a blood sample. The neat thing is that Hatfill is the one who had to tell them the kind of [blood] test that they need to be doing," Mr. Hatfill's attorney, Victor M. Glasberg, told The Washington Times yesterday.

Mr. Glasberg said he expects the FBI will be able to determine by tomorrow whether Mr. Hatfill's handwriting matches that on the anthrax letters sent in the fall to media outlets in Florida and New York and to two senators on Capitol Hill. The anthrax attacks killed five persons.

Mr. Glasberg said that if the bureau does not make public its analysis of Mr. Hatfill's handwriting within "about five days," Mr. Hatfill will submit samples to a private handwriting analyst who has offered to examine them.

The FBI declined to confirm whether blood or handwriting samples have been sought. "Any handwriting samples and results of any scientific or forensic examinations are evidence, which we don't discuss," said Chris Murray, spokesman for the bureau's Washington field office, which is leading the government's anthrax probe.

A new suspicious letter appeared this week at the Nashville, Tenn., offices of former Vice President Al Gore.

Jano Cabrera, a spokesman for Mr. Gore, said the letter was received in the mail Monday. It was opened yesterday by office manager Mary Patterson, and white powder spilled when the letter was opened. The room where the letter was opened has been quarantined, and a hazardous-materials team is investigating.

The envelope was postmarked from Tennessee and was stamped on the back with "This letter has not been inspected by the corrections department."
Steve Hayes, Tennessee Department of Correction spokesman, said it is regular policy to stamp letters that haven't been inspected as being sent from a correctional facility. He said the wording the department uses is different from that on the letter.

On Sunday, Mr. Hatfill said he would voluntarily submit a blood test to the FBI to confirm whether he had been exposed or inoculated against anthrax. It was not clear at that time whether the FBI would accept the offer.

Mr. Hatfill told reporters the blood test was his idea and the fact that the FBI had not yet asked him to submit samples indicated the government's unfamiliarity with conducting such a scientific investigation.

Mr. Glasberg said yesterday he wanted the results of any blood work or handwriting analysis to be widely publicized to help exonerate his client. He said he was considering an offer made by Virginia-based handwriting analyst Mark Smith to examine Mr. Hatfill's handwriting.

Mr. Smith in April told The Times that federal law enforcement authorities had solicited his services immediately after October's anthrax attacks. Upon analyzing the letters, he said the person sending them was a white, middle-aged man who suffers from bipolar disorder, a sexual dysfunction and a martyr complex.

The Anthrax Files

By NICHOLAS D. KRISTOF

When someone expert in bio-warfare mailed anthrax last fall, it may not have been the first time he had struck.

So while the F.B.I. has been unbelievably lethargic in its investigation so far, any year now it will re-examine the package that arrived on April 24, 1997, at the B'nai B'rith headquarters in Washington. The package contained a petri dish mislabeled "anthracks."

The dish did not contain anthrax. But a Navy lab determined that it was bacillus cereus, a very close, non-toxic cousin of anthrax used by the Defense Department.

Anybody able to obtain bacillus cereus knew how to spell "anthrax." An echo of that deliberate misspelling came last fall when the anthrax letters suggested taking "penicilin."

The choice of B'nai B'rith probably was meant to suggest Arab terrorists, because the building had once been the target of an assault by Muslim gunmen. In the same way, F.B.I. profilers are convinced that the real anthrax attacks last year were conducted by an American scientist trying to pin the blame on Arabs.

In a column on July 2 I wrote about "Mr. Z," an American bio-defense insider who intrigues investigators and whose career has been spent in the shadowy world of counterterror and intelligence. He denies any involvement in the anthrax attacks.

On the date that the perpetrator chose for the B'nai B'rith attack, a terrorism seminar was under way in the Washington area and Mr. Z seemed peeved that neither he nor any other bio-defense expert had been included as a speaker. The next day, Mr. Z sent a letter to the organizer saying that he was "rather concerned" at the omission and added: "As was evidenced in downtown Washington D.C. a few hours later, this topic is vital to the security of the United States. I am tremendously interested in becoming more involved in this area...."

Over the next couple of years, Mr. Z used the B'nai B'rith attack to underscore the importance of his field and his own status within it. "Remember B'nai B'rith," he noted at one point. In examples he gave of how anthrax attacks might happen, he had a penchant for dropping Arab names.

The F.B.I. must be on top of the B'nai B'rith episode, right? Well, it was told about it months ago. But B'nai B'rith says it hasn't been asked about the incident by the F.B.I.

The authorities seem equally oblivious to another round of intriguing anthrax hoaxes in February 1999. As with last fall's anthrax letters, a handful of envelopes with almost identical messages were sent to a combination of media and government targets including The Washington Post, NBC's Atlanta office, a post office in Columbus, Ga. (next to Fort Benning, an Army base), and the Old Executive Office Building in Washington (where Mr. Z had given a briefing three months earlier).
I found a local policeman in Columbus willing to dig out his file on that 1999 anthrax hoax. There are several similarities with last fall's mailing. For example, one page of the 1999 letter says, in big, bold capitals: "WARNING: THIS BUILDING AND EVERYTHING IN IT HAS BEEN EXPOSED TO ANTHRAX. CALL 911 NOW AND SECURE THE BUILDING. OTHERWISE THE GERM WILL SPREAD."

Last fall's letters are also in bold capitals and use similar language patterns.

In contrast to the 1997 package with fake anthrax gelatin, the 1999 letters each contained a teaspoon of fake anthrax powder (roughly the same amount as of real anthrax in 2001). That's interesting because as of 1997, U.S. bio-defense scientists were working basically only with wet anthrax, while by 1999 some had experimented with making powders.

For example, Mr. Z apparently learned about powders during those two years. His 1999 résumé adds something missing from the 1997 version: "working knowledge of wet and dry BW [biological warfare] agents, large-scale production of bacterial, rickettsial and viral BW pathogens and toxins."

Two outside consultants used by the F.B.I. to examine documents in the anthrax case, Don Foster and Mark Smith, both say they have not been shown the 1997 or 1999 hoax letters. The 1999 envelopes carried stamps, which may have been licked.

It would be fascinating to know whose DNA that is. Perhaps when the F.B.I. is finished defending itself from charges of lethargy, it will check.

He says he's a patriot, and some on the front lines of the war against terror sing his praises. But his provocative life and career have kept him at the center of the FBI's frustrating hunt for the anthrax killer.

It couldn't be Steve Hatfill. No way.

Stan Bedlington had known the guy for several years. They were drinking buddies who'd both been involved in anti-terrorism efforts long before the World Trade Center crumbled. Now, suddenly, people were saying that Hatfill could be responsible for the country's first case of domestic bioterrorism, a release of lethal anthrax through the mail that had left five people dead and 17 others infected in the fall of 2001. The FBI had just searched Hatfill's apartment in Frederick, looking for traces of anthrax spores or anything else that might tie the scientist to the attack.

Bedlington hadn't seen Hatfill for a while, but he still had vivid memories of him. They'd first met at a Baltimore bioterrorism conference. Bedlington, a retired CIA agent, had spent six years as a senior analyst with the CIA Counter-terrorism Center. Hatfill was working as a virology researcher at the U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases at Fort Detrick, where he'd begun making a name for himself preaching the dangers of a bioterror attack.

Soon they ran into each other again at Charley's Place in McLean, then a favorite hangout for the U.S. intelligence community. Agents and officials from the CIA and Pentagon mingled with private consultants and law enforcement agents. Most were cleared to handle classified information, but after long workdays and a few drinks, the conversation often veered to tales of dark intrigue and, occasionally, into drunken bluster.

Hatfill, who first showed up there with men whom Bedlington recognized as bodyguards for Saudi Arabian Prince Bandar bin Sultan, had plenty of stories to tell.

He bragged about being an ex-Green Beret. He walked with a slight limp and told people it was the result of being shot during combat. In a convincing British accent that he could turn on at will, he described parachute jumps and commando training he did under the direction of the British Special Air Service. He detailed his exploits as a member of the Selous Scouts, an elite counterinsurgency unit of Rhodesia's white supremacist army that became notorious for brutality during that country's civil war. He even recounted a devastating outbreak of anthrax poisoning in the Rhodesian bush in the late 1970s, an event later suspected to be part of an effort by the Selous Scouts to control guerrilla uprisings.

Hatfill was always a little over the top. He once brandished a photo Bedlington considered "a little bit weird" — an image of Hatfill in a biohazard suit pretending to cook up germs in a saucepan. Hatfill also described how easy it would be for a terrorist to enter the Pentagon in a wheelchair and spray a biological agent. Even so, Bedlington was impressed by Hatfill. He considered him a "superpatriot" committed to improving U.S. preparedness for a biological attack. He mentioned Hatfill to a CIA recruiter as an ideal candidate for a clandestine operations job.

After Hatfill's name surfaced in the anthrax case in the summer of 2002, Bedlington kept wondering: Did he really know this man as well as he thought? Curious, Bedlington finally sat down in the den of his Arlington condominium, typed Hatfill's name into a computer search engine and found a copy of his résumé.

Hatfill, it said, had graduated in 1984 from a medical school in Harare, Zimbabwe, the former Rhodesia. Which had no particular significance to Bedlington, until he did a bit more research and learned the campus bordered a suburb called Greendale. A fairly ordinary name, except for one jaw-dropping coincidence: The fictional return address on two of the anthrax letters read 'Greendale School.'

From the air, the pond was little more than a splotch on a canvas of verdant green, a fishing hole tucked among thick woods on the edge of the Catoctin Mountains. Situated along a remote country road, it could easily escape notice on a drizzly June, operation airport, news photographers waited their turns to climb to

The pond sat almost completely empty, sucked dry by pumps. Colors flashed from its banks — yellow police tape, the fiery glow of a welder soldering a black box, and a dozen sour-faced men in orange reflective vests, surveying the pond like disgruntled husbands dispatched to bail out a flooded basement.

"That's it!" the helicopter pilot barked into his mouthpiece, dipping low. A small yellow earthmover sat stuck in the mud, going nowhere. A few trailers dotted a road, including one bearing the initials "FBI."

In a panoramic sweep, the scene below showed the extent to which the agency had gone in search of evidence tying Steven Hatfill to the anonymous anthrax mailings. Such moments of grand theater had punctuated the anthrax investigation — dramatic raids with agents in hazmat suits carting away sealed plastic bags, reports of bloodhounds sniffing out a likely suspect, images of brave divers plunging into icy ponds to pursue a promising lead.

In a chase that had taken agents to the far corners of the world, more than 5,000 people had been interviewed and 20 laboratories used as consultants, according to U.S. Attorney Roscoe C. Howard Jr., who is overseeing the grand jury investigation of the case. The costs for scientific analysis alone had reached $13 million.

Still, after nearly two years, the criminal investigation seemed more stalled than the yellow earthmover. And as the months had dragged on, critics of the FBI's performance had begun to fear that the anthrax attacks might represent a "perfect crime," unsolvable not so much because of the killer's cunning but because of the FBI's inadequacies.

Although Attorney General John Ashcroft vowed just last month that the case would be solved, and FBI officials say they are still pursuing a short list of suspects, only one man has been subjected to intense public suspicion: Steven Jay Hatfill.

Before he was dubbed "a person of interest" in the case, Hatfill had been part of a tight circle of U.S. government officials and consultants working to counter the global bioterror threat.

He'd trained defense intelligence agents and soldiers in the elite Special Forces. He'd served as an adviser to the State Department's Diplomatic Security Service. He'd worked with the Pentagon, the CIA, even, ironically, with FBI agents, one of whom Hatfill recognized as a former student when his home was being searched.

For more than a year now, the FBI has monitored Hatfill's every move, following him so relentlessly that an agent drove over his right foot in a May incident on Wisconsin Avenue. Holed up in his girlfriend's luxury condominium near the Washington National Cathedral, Hatfill surfs the Internet and watches TV to stave off boredom. He's been unemployed for more than a year. A job interview he had fell apart when the FBI followed him to the restaurant where it was taking place and began videotaping.
His supporters compare him to Richard Jewell, the man falsely accused in the 1996 Atlanta Olympics bombing case, one of the greatest embarrassments in the FBI's modern history.

Hatfill insists he is innocent and, in a lawsuit filed last month, accused Ashcroft and the FBI of engaging in a "patently illegal campaign of harassment" to cover up their own failure to solve the case. The violations of his civil rights and privacy, Hatfill contends in his 40-page lawsuit, "are not honest mistakes. They are the acts of government agents who long ago chose expedience over principle and abandoned any pretense of concern for the constitutional rights of an American citizen."

The FBI, the lawsuit charges, has wiretapped Hatfill's phones, made it impossible for him to work and leaked information about him to the news media "in a highly public campaign to accuse Dr. Hatfill without formally naming him a suspect or charging him with any wrongdoing."

Hatfill's wish is simple, his attorney Thomas G. Connolly said in a press conference announcing the suit. "He wants his life back."

Whether that's possible depends on how the FBI resolves a single question: Who is the real Steven Jay Hatfill? Is he the zealous patriot so expert at preparing U.S. troops and agents for biowarfare that agencies risked security breaches to use his services? Or is he a contemptuous "catch-me-if-you-can" criminal, whose offhand comments to an associate had sent agents in hard hats and knee boots scouring a Frederick mud pit, desperately searching for clues?

The first to die was Robert Stevens, a South Florida photo editor whose blood was swimming with a bacteria that most doctors had seen only in medical textbooks. Cause of death: inhalation anthrax, the most fatal and rare form of the diseases caused by B. anthracis, the anthrax bacteria.

Within two days of Stevens's death on October 5, 2001, doctors discovered a second inhalation anthrax case at a Miami hospital. The victim, Ernesto Blanco, turned out to be a mailroom worker and friend of Bob Stevens at the Boca Raton headquarters of American Media Inc., publisher of the National Enquirer.

Although the letter that sickened them both was never found, Stevens's mail slot tested positive for anthrax contamination.

Soon letters laced with anthrax began turning up in other places, first at the offices of the New York Post and NBC News anchor Tom Brokaw, then, on October 15, at the Capitol Hill office of Sen. Tom Daschle. The letter to Daschle ended with the message: "Death to America. Death to Israel. Allah is Great." At the time, the nation was still reeling from the September 11 attacks on New York and Washington. Many terrorism experts feared another attack, perhaps the release of a biological agent.

Now the country held its breath as others who had come into contact with the letters began to fall ill. The scope of the contamination was astonishing. The letter to Daschle and another to Vermont Sen. Patrick Leahy had rolled through high-speed sorting machines at huge East Coast postal centers, including the Brentwood distribution center in Northeast D.C., where two workers, Joseph P. Curseen and Thomas L. Morris Jr., died of inhalation anthrax. (Brentwood was shut down on October 21, 2001, and has yet to reopen.) Fine anthrax powder -- weaponized and lethal -- had rained over millions of pieces of mail. Spores surfaced at the U.S. Supreme Court, at Howard University, at the Stamp Fulfillment Services building in Kansas City, Mo., at the U.S. Embassy in Vilnius, Lithuania, at an accounting firm in Mercerville, N.J., at the main post office in West Palm Beach, Fla.

No one felt entirely safe from one of the most deadly germs known to man.

The FBI first began to pursue the obvious, whether al Qaeda operatives were behind the anthrax release. Then investigators received the first DNA analysis of the anthrax spores found inside American Media's offices. The results were startling,

Sir,

The following information, although unclassified, is extremely sensitive due to its high profile in the media. As such, it is requested that this communication receive limited dissemination.

FBI, Washington Field Office, is requesting your assistance in support of FBI Major Case #184; AMERITHRAX. The AMERITHRAX Task Force investigates the September and October of 2001, series of mailings containing Bacillus anthracis (Ba) spores, the causative agent of anthrax. The Ba-laden letters were mailed to: Editor, New York Post, New York, New York; Tom Brokaw, NBC TV, New York, New York; Senator Daschle, Washington, D.C.; and Senator Leahy, Washington, D.C. Although no letter was recovered, it is believed the American Media Incorporated building in Boca Raton, Florida, also received a Ba-laden letter due to an anthrax-related fatality and extensive building contamination.

As indicated by the statements of the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, Jeffrey Taylor, and FBI Assistant Director, Joseph Persichini of the FBI Washington Field Office, Dr. Bruce Edwards Ivins, date of birth 4/22/1946, SSN 280-44-5449, was the primary subject of the investigation before his death.

The FBI, in order to complete the investigation despite the death, request information pertaining to Dr. Ivins’s Army Knowledge Online (AKO) account. Relevant information would include any and all saved e-mails, files, documents, photographs and any other activities that can be associated with Dr. Ivins’s use of the account.
Thank you for your attention and cooperation with this matter. If you have any questions, please contact Inspector in Charge.

Respectfully,

On July 31, 2008, Reporting Agent met with Systems Administrator Frederick County Public Libraries (FCPL), and Last Name Unknown (LNU), technical staff employee for the FCPL, at their place of employment, 110 East Patrick Street, Frederick, Maryland. The Reporting Agent advised and LNU of the FBI’s interest in reviewing the hard-drives of two library computers. Reporting Agent displayed a rough sketch indicating the location of the two computers. The computers were located on the second floor of the C. Burr Artz Library, stations #54 and #41. Stated, station #54 was an express computer, meaning anyone may access the internet at this station without logging on. There is a time limit of 15 minutes at the express stations. After 15 minutes the computer automatically logs the user off. The express stations are intended for use by out-of-towners or people without library cards. The computer at station #41 requires the use of a library card to log on and there is no time limit for this type of station.

A short time later, Reporting Agent asked FCPL Library to join the meeting. Reporting Agent listed possible options for in order of preference: (1) release the computers to the FBI in order for FBI computer specialists to examine the hard-drives, (2) allow FBI computer specialists to review the computer hard-drives at the library, or (3) have the library technical support staff mirror the hard drives and provide the data to the FBI. asked LNU their opinions, at which pointed they both stated, they prefer the computers be released to the FBI, in order to remain out of the loop. Agreed and verbally consented to releasing the computers located at stations #54 and #41.

Reporting Agent observed and LNU remove the computer towers from stations #54 and #41. The computer towers were taken to their office on the first floor for storage. Reporting Agent advised the computer towers would be picked up at a later time and an FD-597 Property Receipt would be provided.

Approximately one hour later, Reporting Agent returned to the C. Burr Artz Library and picked up the aforementioned computer towers. The FD-597 Property Receipt was signed and a copy was provided to the library. The computer towers were transported to the Northern Virginia Resident Agency and placed into evidence, 1B4467 (station #54 computer tower) and 1B4468 (station #41 computer tower).

The FD-597, notes, and a copy of the rough sketch are maintained in a 1A envelope.

was interviewed at home located at After being advised of the identity of the interviewing agents and the nature of the interview, provided the following information:

stated heard of a hit list created by BRUCE IVINS (BRUCE), who in turn heard it from BRUCE's psychiatrist had called regarding BRUCE. The hit-list supposedly had name on it as well as FBI Agents, although no FBI Agents were named specifically. could not provide any further information as was the only one privileged to the conversation. does know that BRUCE had a breakdown at an AA meeting and what he said caused him to be arrested.

received a call from BRUCE on July 12, 2008, the Saturday after his meeting, it was around 11:00am or 12:00pm BRUCE told "what the agents are looking for, they will never find." The call lasted for approximately 30 to 45 seconds. At the time of the call, BRUCE was a patient at the Sheppard Pratt psychiatric hospital in Baltimore, Maryland and a search of BRUCE's home was underway. That same day received a second call from BRUCE on July 14th or 15th asking for did not provide BRUCE the address.

believed that didn't visit BRUCE while he was at Sheppard Pratt. heard from was upset by this assessment and did not think BRUCE should have been released. went to Sheppard Pratt on the day he was discharged and made it clear that BRUCE needed long term care.

After BRUCE left Sheppard Pratt, he was supposed to have follow-up care during the day, and with a new Doctor, not BRUCE wasn't set to have a follow-up until August 11, 2008. believed BRUCE's therapist, knew BRUCE best.
seemed to be the only one that could get into his head and understand him. [Blank] had even spoken with [Blank].

BRUCE was released from Sheppard Pratt on Thursday, July 24th. On Friday, July 25th, [Blank] was in a good mood and [Blank] didn't know until Sunday afternoon, July 27th, that BRUCE had been admitted to Frederick Memorial Hospital. [Blank] heard from a friend who was driving up Military Road during the early morning hours, Sunday morning, and saw the emergency vehicles. [Blank] heard BRUCE had overdosed on Tylenol and Valium, however, [Blank] didn't know how much he took. BRUCE had kidney and liver damage and he was going to die. As of the night of July 28, 2008, BRUCE had 24 to 48 hours to live. He had not come out of the coma, [Blank] didn't leave a note.

provided the Interviewing Agents copies of message [Blank] between [Blank] and BRUCE. [Blank] stated did not have all of the communications because [Blank] deleted some by accident. [Blank] thought that BRUCE was mad at [Blank] because of some of the emails. In one of the communications, [Blank] indicated that BRUCE responded to [Blank] with the theme of "well she hasn't divorced me yet." One of the messages [Blank] which was deleted indicated that BRUCE had walked to [Blank] neighborhood and walked around [Blank] cul-de-sac at night. In the communication [Blank] asked BRUCE why he didn't stop in, BRUCE replied, he would have been as welcome as a mole. [Blank] estimated the date of the to be after his alcohol treatment but before his stay at Sheppard Pratt. [Blank] said that this was the first time that concerned.

About a week ago, BRUCE emailed [Blank] still believes BRUCE did not mail the anthrax letters.

After the Interviewing Agents returned to the Frederick offsite, [redacted] called the Reporting Agent at 11:25am stating that BRUCE had just died and [redacted] did not want to talk to him again.

The [redacted] message communications are attached and all interview notes are maintained in a 1A envelope.
KlngBadger7: good evening
hi

KlngBadger7: no.

KlngBadger7: it is!

KlngBadger7: I'll let you go. I stayed in bed today - didn't feel very good.
sorry to hear that

KlngBadger7: that is strange!

KlngBadger7: indeed!

KlngBadger7: Maybe I'll be a greeter at WalMart or something.

KlngBadger7: SOUNDS LIKE A GOOD PLAN

KlngBadger7: I can get even more senile and still do my job.

just need to smile

KlngBadger7: ...and not sleep on the job.

you can sleep as long as you smile

KlngBadger7: Good idea! Maybe my ashes can be spread into a big smiley face!!

and where shall we spread this smiley face?

KlngBadger7: Just not at Fort Detrick. I am soooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooo tired of working there.

HOW MANY YEARS?

KlngBadger7: Since 1980.

KlngBadger7: Things were fine until________ took over and then________________. They are micromanagers, and the latter drive me up a wall.

that is always very difficult

KlngBadger7: had more independence in what they were doing than I did. I had to answer directly to the two men, and deliberately wrote in terrible handwriting so that I would have to knock on his door, be invited in, and beg him to translate his gobbledygook.

that is awful

KlngBadger7: told me what experiments to do, then demanded I show him all the results. I was like a highschool summer student to him.

that is sad after all those years!

KlngBadger7: if it's not important to it's not important. He never did anything about then he did something. Otherwise, he'd shrug it off, since it didn't matter to him.

wow! nasty

KlngBadger7:

KlngBadger7: You don't know the half of it!!!!!!! He was brilliant, angry, full of rage and violence, but as long as he did what he wanted him to do, it didn't matter what he did to everyone else.

KlngBadger7:

KlngBadger7: I look up lots of people on the internet.

what made you think of him tonight?

KlngBadger7: Thinking about how USAMRIID has gone downhill, thinking about anything or anyone that doesn't directly affect him
I retire on 2 SEP of this year. Hooray.

KingBadger7: I can hardly wait.

KingBadger7: Yeah. I think lots of people will be happy to see me go and out of their lives so you have any ideas what you want to do? I think I would like to sleep for a year maybe you can travel...see the world!

KingBadger7: Well...A lot of people will not want to come to any retirement party. They just want me to disappear.

KingBadger7: People at work don't like the vibes I give off. That's why I need a new start.

KingBadger7: Things that happened within the last few weeks or months.

KingBadger7: There's this one guy who thinks he's big stuff who goes around and says things to me like, "Hi!, how's the anthrax killer?" HA!!!!! He also sent me a letter from Trenton that he thought was funny.

Yeah. I apologized, but that's not nearly enough.

KingBadger7: The other guy goes around saying how he's going to punch the FBI in the nose.

I shouldn't bring into that part of the conversation. Sorry.

KingBadger7: I don't know what just wonder if is really true it is driving me crazy or was is a misunderstanding in reading an email ugh!

KingBadger7: Things that happened within the last few weeks or months.

then where in the world did this originate?

KingBadger7: That's what makes me feel especially bad about the whole thing. I started an untrue rumor and hurt many people, for which I am truly sad.

you certainly seemed adamant about it a few months ago

KingBadger7: It's been so long ago - years - that I can't remember. It may have been just bantering back and forth between me and a bunch of women, with them ganging up on me as usual. Well...I was wrong.

KingBadger7: It honestly did get on my nerves when at work got on my case about everything.

you should have told them that also why in the world would you have to me a few months ago if you didn't know for sure that it was true KingBadger7: Besides, how would I know anything about personal life anyway? I wouldn't, so I should never have put 2 + 2 together to get 5.

I once asked why they all made fun of me and ridiculed me so much, and they said it was because I was so easy to make fun of. honesty is very important to me!

that is sad you should have told them to stop

KingBadger7: I hope sincere grief and apologies are also important.

KingBadger7: I don't know what caused me to say something in the IM about that. Maybe I just felt so abandoned and betrayed that she no longer wished to even say hi that I decided to say something so cruel and untrue. I don't believe that...
did you ever say anything to the FBI?

KingBadger7: I'm not allowed to say what conversations came up. Besides, I can tell you that I never told any investigators that I just hate a web of deceit.

ok I just hate a web of deceit.

KingBadger7: The bottom line is that was such a confidante for so many years, then I got dropped like a hot potato.

so you never saw an email between about this was all made up?

KingBadger7: I guess a combination of anger, regret, sorry, loss, etc. all contributed to a very poor and cruel decision on my part.

KingBadger7: I was always pulling my leg about things. When came up with the ideas, and carried them out.

KingBadger7: Well regardless what says, I believe sounds like you still have a lot of anger.

maybe I should chat with then I can close this issue.

KingBadger7: I have a lot of sadness. It's about losing people I considered friends, and I lost them over my own cruel words. I think that we should just leave the subject at being truthful, and me being thoughtless and unkind. I can't apologize enough for that. Just believe I wish we could have stayed pleasant confidantes. When I didn't get invited to the figured I was on bad side. Then when I got the email about I was so taken aback I didn't know what to do.

KingBadger7: I hope if you ever found out who said that about you told them the truth.

KingBadger7: I think the best thing to do is not to talk to anybody else about the subject, but just tell that you believe and that I will forever regret my cruel and untrue comments about I hope someday can forgive.

I guess I will always wonder about the real truth.

ok I have an early meet tomorrow so talk to you later.
I'm going to go up soon and read myself to sleep. lazy is good!

I have to look for a place to work soon. that should not be a problem you have experience!

plus aren't you suppose to be a bum for awhile after retirement

White hat experience - not black hat experience.

I remember changing a faucet and plumbing fixture in our bathroom.

sad that you have so many unhappy memories

I'm not made of money.

Enough grousing. I think I'll go read.

I'm getting in a bad mood just talking about it. Sorry. I hope you have a fine evening. Good night!!!

then what in the world were you talking about when you told me about what was to gain

KingBadger7: I have a tough time - they have to allow privacy on the one hand - and they can't allow abuse of government property (pornography or chain letters, for example) on the other. We're sort of caught in the middle. Believe me, the 3-letter people have read every keystroke I've ever typed.

are you now being honest or just trying to I am still puzzled because you said you saw the email

oh well I guess someday I will have to talk to something just doesn't seem right.... the puzzle pieces don't quite fit together

KingBadger7: Whoa, I can tell you right now that 1) I don't know anything about and 2) wouldn't have any way of knowing I obviously can't sit down and say

YOU are the one who said

KingBadger7: I would believe that would be one thing. But was you keep avoiding the issue of YOU

it's really hard to forget your disclosure of that day

Remember that walking by somebody's computer and looking to see if you've been called the "black cloud" - which is what they called me, is an instant thing.

In an email as I'm walking by, I'm not going to stay STOP! let me read that! So...yes I saw reference to it, but never saw the words that would say that you should t

KingBadger7: so you made it all up??? hmmmmm I still have (printed) the conversation from that day best to drop this subject it makes me crazy!

KingBadger7: Plus - in my wonderful mental state - alcohol and pills, and being considered in the "Top Tier" of bad guys in the anthrax attacks, I would put little credibility in what I say. Now I'm sane. Then....well, you saw yes I did but when you told me bout it was not crazy it was quite direct KingBadger7: The whole thing since 9-11 has been a nightmare for me. I grieve for the victims of the plane crashes into the buildings, for the victims in PA and at the Pentagon, for the victims of the anthrax attacks, and for the victims of the Oklahoma city bombing. Such sadness.

Hi!

KingBadger7: Wonder where is?
I have no clue.
possibly

KingBadger7: I didn't see one.

KingBadger7:

KingBadger7:

KingBadger7: I love new things I want a gadget that will clean my house program it in the morning and let it go have one of those robot sweepers that go everywhere and pick up all the dirt, and when they bump into something, they go in another direction.

oh well in my next life I am going to be a house cat

yup
Cat - sounds good.
sleep all day and hiss at anyone who bothers me..... I love it

Yeah, but the food from the can everyday would get old. Fast!
as long as I don't have to prepare it... I would love it
I get sooooo tired of cooking

I did?
KingBadger7: Yep! When we were talking about drinking.

I still don't understand why and you got involved, when it was a and I would have been fine.
you involved us

Would you like my situation?
KingBadger7: Oh - yeah I heard a story in group tonight about blackout behavior - very scary. I sit beside this old guy who always tries to lead the conversation to his Wisdom.

But I couldn't understand why enough to be done with me forever!!!!!

so if you would have been done with forever, would you have "been fine?"
Interesting use of words
KingBadger7: There was no intention for that! Blackouts are terrible, it's not like sleeping, it's doing, then wondering what the "&% you did the next day. All the meds, as well as the vodka were very effective at blackouts.

so the rest of us ignorant beings had no clue you were drining or having blackouts what were we suppose to think receive this horrible email and ignore it???

hmmm some friend
On July 30, 2008, Amerithrax Task Force personnel met with Frederick County Public Libraries, at his place of employment, 110 East Patrick Street, Frederick, Maryland. Task Force personnel advised that they were looking at a subject who used two of the computers within C. Burr Artz Library on July 24, 2008 between 7:15pm and 8:15pm. Task Force personnel requested permission to take the computer towers to review the hard-drives. Advised that a court order would be needed. The Reporting Agent explained that extenuating circumstances existed, specifically, the individual who used the library computers was dead and it was possible evidentiary information may be stored in the hard-drives. Understood the exigency of the situation and advised Task Force personnel to return the following day to meet with the library's technical support staff.

Details: On 07/14/2008, a trash cover was conducted at the residence of Bruce Edwards Ivins, among the items recovered were several small pieces of paper containing what appeared to be screen names of e-mail addresses. The partial screen name "BRUCEIVI" was found on one such piece of paper. Also recovered was a piece of paper containing the e-mail account also contained on that piece of paper was the phrase the password for the above mentioned e-mail account. By way of background, a
During the course of the investigation, members of the AMERITHRAX Task Force have learned that Ivins has a history of using multiple screen names and e-mail accounts when interacting with individuals. Ivins also has a history of using fictitious names, addresses and other information to register for e-mail accounts. Ivins, in the past, has been known to use Yahoo!, America Online (AOL) and other e-mail accounts.

Based on the above mentioned information, a WEB search was conducted for the term "BRUCEIVI" on 07/15/2008. The search returned a link to a youtube.com posting of a video clip of season 1 of "The Mole." Also posted on the link are multiple web log comments by an individual using the screen name "bruceivi." The comments were posted as follows:

Steve had a great chance to Kill Kathryn that would go down as the primo moment in reality TV. After the fake fainting he'd say, "Kathryn, do you know what a mole is? It's a blind useless animal that humans hate. And do you know what we do to moles? We kill them!"

bruceivi (1 week ago)
With that he should have taken the hatchet and brought it down hard and sharply across her neck, severing her carotid artery and jugular vein. Then when she hits the ground, he completes the task on the other side of the neck, severing her trachea as well. The "Blind" mole is dead and Steve is a hero among heroes! I personally would have paid big money to have done it myself.

bruceivi (1 week ago)
Maybe something really dreadful will happen to Kathryn Price. If so, she will richly deserve it! The least someone could do would be to take a sharp ballpoint pin or letter opener and put her eyes out, to complete the task of making her a true mole!

Major Case 184

Synopsis: Attorneys and Bruce Ivins reviewed Grand Jury transcripts.

Details: At approximately 1:30 PM on May 1, 2008, Attorneys accompanied Bruce Ivins to the US Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia.

AUSA Kenneth Kohl and IIC met with the visitors to discuss the ground rules for reviewing May 8 and May 10, 2007, Grand Jury transcripts.

The Attorneys and Ivins could review the transcripts, but they were instructed not to take notes or make copies of the transcripts.

The transcript review was completed at approximately 5:15 PM. After the review Ivins left the office and AUSAs Kohl, Rachel Lieber and SA discussed the continued interest by the FBI/USAO to conduct additional interviews of Ivins. stated that Ivins wishes to continue with additional interviews, but did not feel it was advantageous for Ivins to submit to another interview. further stated that Ivins was being self admitted to a State of Maryland rehabilitation facility on May 2, 2008. Ivins would remain in the facility for 28 days. SA stated that waiting until June to conduct additional interviews of Ivins as well as other potential witnesses were unacceptable. said they could possibly work out an arrangement for Ivins to be released for one day on May 13th. would bring Ivins to a pre-agreed location for an interview. SA indicated this would be acceptable, but if the interview could not be arranged prior to Ivins official release, then the FBI would have to move forward in conducting interviews of individuals close to Ivins. SA explained that the FBI has taken every precaution possible to protect the privacy of Ivins while conducting the investigation. The FBI would continue following this course of action, but if Ivins does not make himself available, then the FBI has no choice except to try and obtain relevant information through other interviews. said he understood and didn't expect the investigation to stop until Ivins release.

The meeting ended at approximately 6:30 P.M.
On July 24, was interviewed at residence, home phone number ____________ after being advised of the identity of the interviewing agents, provided the following information:

Reporting Agent stated that it was likely a Search Warrant would be served on IVINS in the near future.

On July 12, 2008, prior to serving a Search Warrant on IVINS and his belongings at Sheppard Pratt. Reporting Agent requested to contact at home and inform him of the Search Warrant as a courtesy. was contacted and made aware of the impending search.

On July 14, 2008, Reporting Agent contacted and thanked him for the assistance of and . In addition, Reporting Agent requested to be notified if IVINS were to have a commitment hearing and date of his release.

On July 15, 2008, Reporting Agent left a voicemail message for advising him that a cassette tape would be dropped off as evidence for IVINS' commitment hearing. Shortly thereafter, Reporting Agent dropped off the cassette tape leaving it with

On July 16, 2008, Reporting Agent inquired about the status of IVINS' commitment hearing and release date. stated he was no longer able to provide the Reporting Agent with any information, including a date of release. mentioned he had met with Sheppard Pratt legal counsel and facility management regarding the situation with IVINS.
On August 12, 2008, Reporting Agent returned Search Warrants: 08-496-M 01 and 08-497-M 01 for certification to Chief U.S. Magistrate Judge Royce Lamberth of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. The Search Warrant returns were sworn to and signed by Reporting Agent and Chief U.S. Magistrate Judge Lamberth. The returns were filed the same day with the Clerk of the U.S. District Court.

A copy of each return is maintained in a 1A envelope.
On August 11, 2008, Reporting Agent provided copies of two United States District Court, District of Columbia, search warrants to Frederick County Public Libraries. The search warrants were for two library computers previously provided to the Reporting Agent on July 31, 2008. The computers are currently located at the Northern Virginia Resident Agency, Manassas, Virginia.

Copies of the search warrants are maintained in a 1A envelope.
On July 21, 2008, provided the following information:

Over the weekend, the following:

BRUCE IVINS, flew off the handle at his AA meeting. He threatened to kill and an FBI Agent. BRUCE had been attending AA because he abused drugs and alcohol.
On August 07, 2008, two search warrants issued by the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, were obtained. They are further described as follows:

Search warrant number 08-497-M-01, for Dell Optiplex 320 computer, Bar Code 41YPBC1, property ID number 00531, formerly located at Station 41, C. Burr Artz Library, 110 East Patrick Street, Frederick, Maryland 21701, currently located at 9325 Discovery Blvd, Manassas, VA.

Search warrant number 08-496-M-01, for Gateway Series E Computer, MFG Code 0033161568, formerly located at Station 54, C. Burr Artz Library, 110 East Patrick Street, Frederick, Maryland 21701, currently located at 9325 Discovery Blvd, Manassas, VA.

Both search warrants were signed by Chief Judge Royce C. Lamberth and the returns were filed in the clerks office.

Copies of the search warrants can be located in the file in 1A-7966.
On August 13, 2008, a violinist, cellular telephone number ______, was interviewed regarding the interpretation of handwritten markings on a violin music sheet seized on July 12, 2008, from BRUCE EDWARDS IVINS, date of birth 04/22/1946, social security number 280-44-5449. The following information:

In reference to the music sheet: "Detached Stroke with Double-Stops" from the book "Shirmer's Library of Musical Classics, The Techniques of Bowing, volume 932, Casartelli," believed the piece to be fairly difficult, such as the early college level of a violinist.

The markings that are either shaped like a boxy "U" or a "V" represent an up or down bow stroke. The numbers 1, 2, and 3, that are written over the notes indicate which finger to use on the violin fingerboard. The letters "T" and "A" were likely a teacher's tool, instructing the student to play the note with the strings together ("T") or open ("A"). In this instance, the "A" was for the student to play each note separately then together, for tuning purposes. The "A" and the "T" would not stand on their own without the music.

recognized that the eighth line, the last line on the sheet, as the coda; that is, it was different than the other seven lines.
On February 22, 2008, the Maryland Department of Motor Vehicles (MDMV) provided the following information on BRUCE EDWARDS IVINS:

NEW VEHICLES PURCHASED OUT-OF-STATE
1. A Manufacturer's Certificate of Origin or other ownership document as required by law and original Dealer's Bill of Sale must accompany this application.

NEW VEHICLES PURCHASED IN MARYLAND
1. A Manufacturer's Certificate of Origin for the vehicle must accompany this application.
2. Separate MVA Notarized Bill of Sale required if Maryland Dealer's Certification on the front of this application is not completed.

ODOMETER MILEAGE STATEMENT
(federal regulations require the Seller or Transferee to state the odometer mileage upon Transfer of ownership. An inaccurate statement may make seller liable for damages to the Transferee, pursuant to section 409 of the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act of 1972, Public Law 92-613)

MOTOR VEHICLE INSPECTION REQUIREMENTS
The Motor Carrier Safety Act requires the owner of every vehicle with a registered or operating gross vehicle weight greater than 10,000 pounds to have each vehicle inspected, maintained, and repaired at least every 25,000 miles or 12 months, whichever occurs first, and to provide written certification that the vehicle(s) have been maintained under a preventive maintenance program approved by the Motor Vehicle Administration and Maryland State Police Automotive Safety Enforcement Division.

TITLE FEE
The fee for title will be $25.00.
FEE FOR TRANSFER OR REGISTRATION PLATES
If the annual registration fee is the same as or less than the previously owned vehicle, the transfer fee is $10.00. If the annual registration fee is more than the previously owned vehicle, the transfer fee is $10.00 plus an additional $5.00 for the transfer fee.
JOINT TENANTS
Joint tenants means that although inheritance tax is due, the vehicle can be transferred directly to the survivor without any liability for any outstanding bills in the estate of the deceased. Upon transfer to the survivor, the application must be accompanied by the Death Certificate. For Tenants by the Entireties application for title transfer for Real Property.

REGISTRATION PLATES FEES (Find your fee under the proper classification)
PRIVATELY OWNED VEHICLES
Class identified below will be registered for 2 years at the time they are titled or when their registration is renewed. The 2 year registration does not apply to Class E, truck vehicles in excess of 7,000 pounds.

CLASS A - Passenger Cars and Station Wagons
2 YRS. 1 YR.

CLASS B - Multi-Purpose Vehicles
Shipping weight up to 3700 lbs. $10.00 $15.00
Shipping weight over 3700 lbs. $103.00 $15.00

CLASS C - Special Equipment Vehicles
$184.00 $92.00

CLASS D - Motorcycle, Motor Scooters and Motor Bicycles

Sensitive but Unclassified - For Official Use Only
On August 12, 2008, Amerithrax Task Force Personnel met with Detective Sergeant [redacted] and Detective [redacted] of the Frederick Police Department Criminal Investigation Division. Reporting Agent provided a cassette tape copy of [redacted]'s treatment records from FMH. [Redacted] interviewed [redacted] on Friday, August 8, 2008. The interview was related to [redacted].

[Redacted] had a copy of [redacted]'s treatment records from FMH. According to those records, [redacted] had horseshoe shaped markings on his buttocks, abrasions on his right hip, right shin and left leg, and some faint writing in blue ink on his left thigh. The abrasions were treated by FMH and the writing on his thigh were illegible. No photos were taken of the writing. When [redacted] was conscious, FMH staff asked him if he intentionally tried to kill himself, [redacted] replied yes and attempted to pull the tubes off of himself. [Redacted] was then restrained. [Redacted] stated [redacted] had a Do not Resuscitate (DNR) order. [Redacted] would have needed a liver transplant and would have to have been put on the transplant list.

stated he would provide a copy of the FMH records to the Reporting Agent.

stated that when the initial 911 call came in it was an assist fire/ems call. Therefore, there was minimal documentation. Had the call gone out as an attempted suicide, a more thorough investigation would have been conducted. As a result, the responding officer went back and added more information to his initial report. pointed out a few deviations of normal procedure surrounding BRUCE's death: (1) normally FMH would notify the Frederick Police Department (FPD) of death by suicide, FPD had not been notified, (2) normally FMH immediately notifies the Medical Examiner (ME) after a death due to suicide, FMH did not notify the ME until after BRUCE was "bagged and tagged" and someone remembered to call the ME, (3) autopsies are not normally performed unless unusual circumstances dictate, said had they been privy to more information surrounding BRUCE they would have requested an autopsy.

advised, they were looking into contacting and BRUCE's other therapists, to determine if BRUCE may have been involved in other crimes in the area. They want to determine if he could have been a suspect in their cold case files.

Meeting notes and a copy of the note provided to are maintained in a 1A envelope.
On August 26, 2008 at approximately 9:45am, Amerithrax Task Force personnel returned two computer towers to the C. Burr Artz Library, 110 East Patrick Street, Frederick, Maryland. The computer towers are identified as: (1) Gateway E Series, Evidence Control Number 1B 4467, Barcode E04090083 and (1) Dell Optiplex 320, Evidence Control Number 1B 4468, Barcode E04090084. The aforementioned items were released to an employee of the C. Burr Artz Library. Signed a Receipt of Property (FD-597) for each computer and was provided a copy of each.

The original Receipt of Property forms are maintained in a 1A envelope.
who had previously been interviewed by Special Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on March 27, 2008, wished to provide further information regarding contact with BRUCE EDWARDS IVINS, Ph.D., in the Fall of 2001, and discuss its relevance to the investigation into the anthrax mailings of that same year.

After reviewing notes, recalled the timeline of events surrounding ROBERT STEVENS, the first fatality of the 2001 anthrax attacks, being diagnosed with inhalation anthrax. On October 3, 2001, STEVENS became ill and was hospitalized. Once STEVENS was admitted to the hospital, a blood culture was done to test for the presence of bacteria. The culture yielded Gram-positive "rods" and doctors were confident that STEVENS had inhalation anthrax. By the evening of October 4, 2001, the diagnosis had been confirmed publicly. The CDC then dispatched two teams, one to North Carolina and one to Florida, in order to gather information regarding STEVENS' activities and determine the source of the anthrax. During a press conference that same date, then-Secretary of Health and Human Services TOMMY THOMPSON suggested STEVENS may have contracted anthrax by drinking water from a contaminated stream. According to [redacted] it is very unlikely to contract inhalation anthrax in this manner. [redacted] stated THOMPSON was a "politician" and an "attorney" who had no field experience working with anthrax.

Around this time period, [redacted] recalled receiving an e-mail from BRUCE IVINS regarding STEVENS having been diagnosed with inhalation anthrax. When asked if [redacted] knew the date he received the e-mail, [redacted] stated [redacted] would have received it the Thursday just before Columbus Day weekend (October 4, 2001). [redacted] stated [redacted] was certain [redacted] received the e-mail on this date because [redacted] would not have been at work checking e-mail on Saturday or Sunday of a holiday weekend. [redacted] who typically did not respond to IVINS via e-mail, telephoned IVINS on October 5, 2001. IVINS [redacted]

Looking back at that conversation, [redacted] opined that IVINS was upset because there was very little information in the media regarding this case. At this time, [redacted] recalled, there was nothing in the media about the other cases. The cutaneous cases of anthrax had been missed. Also, ERNESTO BLANCO, another employee at American Media Incorporated (AMI), was not immediately diagnosed as having anthrax. [redacted] opined that IVINS, having put all this effort into the first mailings, would have been frustrated that it was all for nothing. [redacted] felt this would explain the difference in the overall quality of the powders used in the two mailings. [redacted] recalled that the spores recovered from the letters used in the first set of mailings were described as "granular and multi-colored." The spores used in the second set of mailings were finer and more uniform in color. Due to the fact that the first set of mailings did not achieve his desired effect, IVINS may have put more effort into producing the powder used in the second set of letters.
described IVINS as a good scientist, but stated he would not call IVINS a "genius." IVINS completed graduate school, and had earned a Ph.D., so he had to have been of above-average intelligence. However, it was not as if IVINS was going to get the Nobel Prize. IVINS was still "low-level" after working at the U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases (USAMRIID) for many years. At best, IVINS would be considered a "team lead" with approximately two or three people "under him."

In an e-mail addressed to SA ___________ dated August 7, 2008, ___________ discussed IVINS' unauthorized environmental sampling of his office and other areas at USAMRIID. ___________ also discussed IVINS' attempt to decontaminate his office, as well as his officemate's work space and computer, with hypochlorite (sodium hypochlorite) solution. According to ___________ IVINS' actions were inconsistent with bio-safety. During the interview, ______ further explained his beliefs.

According to ______ by December 2001, the difficulty of decontaminating office areas was well known. Many of the office buildings that received the anthrax-laced letters would remain closed for several years before being properly decontaminated. It was difficult to decontaminate office computers due to the ability of the spores to get under the keys of the keyboard. Also, spores were able to get into the CPU of the computer. The inability to easily decontaminate office space was such an obstacle that the CDC held a conference to address these issues. The conference, held over two or three days in December of 2001, was attended by individuals from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), Dugway Proving Ground (DPG), Edgewood Chemical Biological Center (ECBC) and the U.S. Army Center for Health Promotion and Preventive Medicine (CHPPM). According to ______ more than 250 individuals attended this conference. Also discussed during the conference were the problems associated with conducting environmental samplings of offices. It would have been necessary to use high efficiency particulate air (HEPA) vacuums to try to obtain particles from computer keyboards. This would have been difficult due to the inability of the vacuum to make contact with the area underneath the keys. In many facilities, it was necessary to use "leaf blowers" to force these particles out of the keyboard. ______ recalled that the teams that conducted the environmental sampling at AMI used "tiny" vacuums to pull particles from the cracks and crevices of STEVENS' computer keyboard. The keyboard tested positive for Bacillus anthracis.
Many of the issues discussed at the conference were covered by the press. For example, LARRY ALTMAN, a medical columnist for the New York Times, covered these issues for his news publication. This information was also readily available on the "Web." Some information did not become available until December 9, 2001, but most of the information had already been disseminated. Many articles and publications discussed what problems had been encountered and what steps should be taken to properly decontaminate office areas.

When asked if he would expect IVINS to have knowledge of this meeting, [replied "Yes."] [who was IVINS' supervisor at the time, would have talked with IVINS regarding these issues.]

considered IVINS to be extremely safety conscious. Therefore, he could not understand IVINS' actions regarding his attempts to decontaminate his office. IVINS' actions were "out of touch" with bio-safety. According to [there was no way that simply wiping down the office space and furniture with hypochlorite would properly decontaminate it. IVINS would not be able to get enough hypochlorite solution into the keyboard without "shorting" it. Rugs and carpets would also pose a problem due to the ability of particles to become trapped in the carpeting. The procedures used by IVINS to decontaminate his office would not have worked. According to [it would have been necessary to seal off the area for months, remove the rugs and fumigate the office using corrosive chemicals. The standard practice at USAMRIID, at the time, was to use paraformaldehyde for fumigation.]

found many of the actions taken by IVINS after the sampling disturbing as well. [did not understand why IVINS, once he had confirmed there was contamination in his office and elsewhere at USAMRIID, did not report his findings to his co-workers. IVINS was placing his co-workers at risk for infection. Even if an individual has been vaccinated against anthrax, the vaccine is not "foolproof." It is still possible for individuals to contract hemorrhagic meningitis if Bacillus anthracis spores are inhaled through the nose. [explained that this is the reason someone's nose would be swabbed if there was an exposure in the laboratory. [could not understand why IVINS would put others at risk unless he was attempting to "cover up" something. If IVINS' story was that the contamination was caused by improper handling of the evidentiary envelopes by a co-worker, then that would indicate that there was contamination elsewhere in the suite. It was opined that IVINS, after preparing the powder used in the mailings, had a high level of contamination. This would explain how IVINS' office became contaminated.
Near the end of the interview, began to provide opinions regarding Bioport, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and the anthrax vaccine did not believe this was IVINS' motive for the anthrax mailings. According to Bioport had "Good Practice Standards" (GPS). Bioport would have initially had problems getting approval of its anthrax vaccine from the FDA, but this was simply a "hurdle." Bioport would have been going back online producing the vaccine; therefore, there would not have been a lack of funding for vaccine research. opined that IVINS was more like an arsonist. An arsonist likes to set fires and then "stick around" to watch them burn. believed this was most likely the motive behind the mailings.

who has followed recent developments in the investigation into the anthrax mailings, has attempted to develop a theory about the source of the silicone in the evidentiary material. made reference to the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology (AFIP) "business" regarding the presence of silicone in the evidentiary material and the particles reduced electrostatic charge. However, after examining the evidence via electron microscopy, it was determined that there was no evidence of the presence of additives. opined that it was possible IVINS used a mortar and pestle to grind the spores once they were dried. The silicone could have come off of the mortar and pestle during this process. having knowledge that Bacillus subtilis was not found in the original flask of RMR-1029, also briefly discussed a possible source of the Bacillus subtilis found in the evidentiary material.

went on to discuss the several methods of drying that were possibly used by IVINS to dry the spores. suggested acetone drying as a possibility. Acetone drying was a common practice at Dugway Proving Ground (DPG). IVINS, having worked closely with researchers at DPG, would have had knowledge of
I added that information regarding acetone drying and lyophilization was also available on the internet.

A copy of e-mail, along with the original notes from the interview, was placed in an FD-340 envelope.
A trash cover was conducted on August 04, 2008, at approximately 12:50 AM. The following items were recovered and submitted to evidence:

- A 3"x5" index card, "Guideposts, Login: Bruceivins, PW: [same]"

- Handwritten note: "KA Theta Headquarters, 9740 Founders Road, Indianapolis, Indiana 46268"

- Handwritten note: "The Mole," "bruceivins@aol.com," "username: Kingbadger7," "PW: NNNnnnnnn666," "also ABC.com," "member name = Bruceivins@aol.com"

The inbox had 52 messages; 41 new messages (bolded messages), and 11 opened messages (non-bolded messages). [It should be noted that Yahoo! has an email format making it possible for the content of a message to be viewed in a different window pane without clicking on the message, thus having the appearance of unopened, or having bold text for the message description line.] The last inbox message shown to have been previously opened was on January 29, 2008, and regarded Kappa Kappa Gamma (KKG). The majority of the "unopened" emails were from Reunion.com and Borders Rewards. There was one email in the "Drafts" section and it was related to KKG. There were several "Sent" messages, most regarding KKG. Some of the sent messages were to himself and titled "addresses." IVINS sent email messages to/from himself that contained his and other peoples email addresses. There were no emails in the "Trash" folder. There was only one contact listed; The "Notepad" was empty. There were nine photos in "my photos;" seven were related to blindfolding during a soccer initiation. The nine photos came from an email Ivins sent from his work email account, "bruce.ivins@us.army.mil;" to his "jimmyflathead@yahoo.com" email account, and them again to his "kingbadger7@aol.com" email account. The email was titled "Soccer Initiation" and appeared to be a hazing news story about Northwestern suspending its soccer team, pending an investigation.

The inbox had eight unread messages, all from ABC Primetime, ABC.com, Yahoo!, and The-Mole Moderator. It appears as if the account was created around July 6, 2008, because there is an email from Yahoo! that says "welcome to Yahoo!." All of the other folders were empty.

The notable email was the sent message from Cindy Wood (kathrynpricefan@hotmail.com), to dated Monday July 7, 2008, 9:54PM. It read as follows:

"Dear Ms. Price,
I am very sorry to bother you, but I wanted to ask you if you are the same Kathryn Price that starred in The Mole reality TV series. I've been a fan of yours/hers since then, and I wondered if you are going to have any public appearances where people could meet you (possibly a book signing?) and get your autograph. There were 15 unopened emails in the inbox, most of which were regarding blindfolding. The sent box had one message dated June 26, 2008, to "blindfoldgames@yahoogroups.com." It read:

"The links for 2008 are getting rather filled up. I'd like to start a links for the second half of the year.

The reply came from and stated: "no problem."

There were 391 spam messages and the calendar was filled daily with a 2 PM appointment titled: "blindfoldphotos: Did You Know!." The Yahoo! group associated with this email account was "blindfoldgames." That group listing showed 830 members and over 600 links to blindfolding pictures or sites.

On August 4, 2008, faxed number faxed the FBI Washington Field Office with information pertaining to a Bruce Ivins, KingBadger7@aol.com, at Ft. Detrick. The fax included a one page summary of interaction with IVINS and two e-mail header pages and text pages from IVINS both dated 11/08/2001.

The first e-mail reads as follows:

Hi,

I'm extraordinarily busy at the moment, but wanted to drop you a line to tell you how dismayed I was yesterday to receive a phone call from a television station in Dallas. They wanted to interview me about the "U.S. Army tested and approved anthrax spore-killing liquid, 911 Relief." I will send you the data as soon as I have the time. I can also suggest that you look into asking Battelle, in Columbus do a small contracted experiment for you. Or perhaps Texas A&M can do a similar experiment with Sterne veterinary vaccine spores. At any rate, associating your product with "U.S. Army testing and approval" is simply not acceptable. I will send you the summary data from the experiment soon. Regards,

-Bruce

Administrative Notes:

All contacts with IVINS began after the mailing. Pen registers and toll records captured multiple phone contacts with IVINS after the mailings. Laboratory notebook review, captured in 279A-WF-222936-USAMRRIID Serial 1456 page 13, noted that IVINS used 1.2 ml of RMR-1029 for a No additional contact with is deemed necessary at this time.
On Friday August 15, 2008, information was received from America On-Line in response to search warrant number 08-493-M-01, executed on August 8, 2008, from the United States District Court for the District of Columbia; for the e-mail account Kingbadger7@aol.com, (and its sub-account Bruceivins1@aol.com), owned by BRUCE EDWARDS IVINS, date of birth 04/22/1946, social security account number 280-44-5449.

On Friday August 15, 2008 and Tuesday August 19, 2008, SA's conducted a review of the preserved data, stored data, electronic mail, and IP addresses provided by Lead Investigator, Public Safety and Criminal Investigations, AOL-Legal Department in response to Search Warrant number 08-493-M-01. The following was observed:

The AOL account, Kingbadger7@aol.com, consisted of mail folders for "sent," "read," "saved," "unread," and "spam" mail.

The "sent" mail folder contained 19 total messages. Due to the format furnished by AOL, which provided only an email number, files numbered 004 and 015 were opened, and determined through sender/recipient information that they appeared to be attorney client privilege. These files were then, neither reviewed nor printed in relation to the warrant. All 17 of the remaining documents were reviewed. Three documents contained within the "sent" mail folder, messages numbered 001, 002, and 005, pertained to sororities and hazing events. Message number 009 was a message, from IVINS to IVINS, forwarding a youtube.com posting which described the slaying of Kathryn Price.

Message 001 "sent" mail, from Kingbadger7@aol.com to appears as a lengthy dialog that begins with how IVINS grew up as a Catholic in Cincinnati, Ohio. Dialog then details IVINS' job as a vaccine scientist at Fort Detrick, and then delves into Greek, Sorority/Fraternity, content, describing the virtues of brotherhood/sisterhood. Dialog stays with the Greek topic, moving into "trust" walks, blindfolding, and hazing standards, both Greek versus non-Greek (church) hazing double standards. E-mails subjects then migrated from inquiries of Kappa Kappa Gamma charity events to the interesting and changing times of today's internet era. Further dialog talks of the how talking-head and sensational the news media has become, and ends with Dick Cheney "scares me," and the "Patriot Act is so unconstitutional." Additionally, IVINS attached Readnotify, an e-mail tracking service, to this e-mail sent to ____________________________.

Message 002, "sent" mail, from Kingbadger7@aol.com to ____________________________ is a copy link (http://greekchat.com/gcforum/member.php?u=59666) to a "Trust Fall" video of terrified female in a religious youth group, and states how there is a double standard religious youth group events and those incidents considered hazing by the GLO (thought to be the Greek Letter Organization).

Message 005, "sent" mail, from Kingbadger7@aol.com to ____________________________ appears as another lengthy dialog beginning with IVINS deeming hazing, to a "reasonable person," as that which would deliberately scare or terrify. IVINS also talks about the goal of rituals as being beautiful, meaningful, memorable, and binding and not "will somebody sue us because of it." The e-mail then moves to discouragement from social interactions between Greeks and non-Greeks and how campuses were run by Greeks. The e-mail continues in the area of the Greek bias toward shallower things, such as, taking "the good looking," and not the personable as members. It continues on about the division or tiers of the GLO's, where, the higher tier's, such as the Kappas, Tri-Delts, Chi Omegas, and Thetas, looked down on all the other GLO's which were "nerds" or "pansies." Lastly, IVINS mentions having worked in a small lab doing research and development on anthrax vaccines and the disasters involved with integrating PC's with Macintosh using Oracle. IVINS also attached Readnotify, to this e-mail sent to ____________________________.

Message 009, "sent" mail, from Kingbadger7@aol.com to Kingbadger7@aol.com is an e-mail, to IVINS from IVINS, of a youtube.com posting (http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0p4tCky6ics) beginning with "Remember the first Mole, the episode where Steve had the opportunity to become the hero of all reality TV heroes by killing the blindfolded mole, Kathryn Price?" The attached posting read "After the fake fainting he's say, 'Kathryn, do you know what a mole is? It's a blind, useless, animal that humans hate. And do you know what we do to moles? We kill them!' With that he should have taken the hatchet and brought it down hard and sharply across her neck, severing her carotid artery and jugular vein. Then when she hits the ground, he completes the task on the other side of the neck, severing her trachea as well. The "Blind" mole is dead and Steve is a hero among heroes! I personally would have paid big money to have done it myself. Maybe something really dreadful will happen to Kathryn Price. If so, she will richly deserve it! The least someone could do would be to take a sharp ballpoint pin or letter opener and put her eyes out, to complete the task of making her a true mole."

The "read" mail folder contained 29 total messages. Files numbered 005, 008, 023, and 024 were communications that appeared to be attorney client privilege and were not reviewed in relation to the warrant. All 25 of the remaining documents were reviewed. Three documents contained within the "read" mail folder, messages numbered 002, 007, and 028, pertained to sororities and hazing events.

Message 002, "read" mail, from [redacted] to Kingbadger7@aol.com, appears to be a response by [redacted] in the aforementioned dialog of messages 001 from "sent" mail.

Message 007, "read" mail, from [redacted] to Kingbadger7@aol.com, appears to be one response by [redacted] in the previously surmised dialog of message 005 from "sent" mail.

Message 028, "read" mail, from [redacted] to Kingbadger7@aol.com, appears to be another response by [redacted] in the aforementioned dialog of message 005 from "sent" mail.

Message 003 and 027, "read" mail, were read notification reports from www.readnotify.com as a result of IVINS attaching Readnotify to the e-mail messages 001 and 005 "sent" to [redacted].

Messages 011, 012, 013, 014, 015, and 016, "read" mail, were all from ABC.com member services relative to IVINS' newly established membership with ABC.com. Messages established IVINS' ABC.com user name, Bruceivi, and his password %22wilburnita%22.

Messages 018, 021, and 022, "read" mail, were all from Kingbadger7@aol.com to Kingbadger7@aol.com referencing the reality television show, "The Mole." E-mails 021 and 022 had a subject headings of "the mole message board," while all three e-mails had http://abc.go.com/primetime/themole/index, links attached.

The "saved" mail folder contained one (1) total message which appeared to be attorney client privilege and was not reviewed in relation to the warrant.

The "unread" mail folder contained 57 total messages. Files numbered 003 was a communication falling under attorney client privilege and was not reviewed in relation to the warrant. All 56 of the remaining documents were reviewed, yet contained no pertinent dialog or content.

The "spam" mail folder contained four (4) total messages, reviewed by agents in relation to warrant, yet contained no pertinent dialog or content.

The AOL sub-account, Bruceivins1@aol.com, consisted of mail folders for "read" and "unread" mail.

The "read" mail folder contained one (1) total message, reviewed by agents in relation to warrant. This message appears to be spam sent from AOLLocal@message.aol.com to Bruceivins1@aol.com.

The "unread" mail folder contained two (2) total messages, reviewed by agents in relation to warrant. Both messages appear to be spam sent from AOLTips@email.aol.com to Bruceivins1@aol.com.

One hundred and two (102) total files were reviewed in association with the AOL account, Kingbadger7@aol.com.

Three (3) total files were reviewed in association with the AOL sub-account, Bruceivins1@aol.com.

No AOL-Pictures were found in association with either AOL account.

All e-mail messages that appeared to be attorney client privilege will be compiled on a separate disk and provided to the United States Attorneys Office for review by a designated taint attorney.

Title: AMERITHRAX

Major Case #184

Synopsis: To capture actions taken to identify, preserve, and search e-mail accounts belonging to BRUCE EDWARDS IVINS.

Details: Through investigative techniques, the following e-mail accounts were identified as belonging to BRUCE EDWARDS IVINS:

Kingbadger7@aol.com, goldenphoenix111@hotmail.com, skymasterson77@hotmail.com, jimmyflathead@yahoo.com, prunetacos@hotmail.com.

The accounts prunetacos@hotmail.com and skymasterson77@hotmail.com were shown to have no records at Microsoft with the example that they had either been inactive or shut down; in either event, Microsoft would retain no further records.

November 19-20, 2007, the following accounts were identified as active and therefore preserved for an initial period of 90 days: Kingbadger7@aol.com, goldenphoenix111@hotmail.com, jimmyflathead@yahoo.com, and prunetacos@hotmail.com. On February 07, 2008, the same accounts were re-preserved for an additional 90 day period.

On February 14, 2008, search warrants were executed on jimmyflathead@yahoo.com, and prunetacos@hotmail.com, (via Yahoo!); and goldenphoenix111@hotmail.com, via Microsoft MSN Hotmail. On February 19, 2008, a search warrant was executed on Kingbadger7@aol.com, via AOL.

Search Warrant 08-082-M-01, dated 2/14/2008, for "goldenphoenix111[at]hotmail[dot]com":

The search warrant was faxed, as required by MSN Microsoft, Custodian of Records. On 2/26/2008 a telephone call and fax was received from MSN noting the way the account was written, using brackets and text instead of symbols, did not allow them to search their records. A new search warrant without the brackets would be necessary.

Search Warrant 08-082-M-01, dated 2/22/2008, for "goldenphoenix111[at]hotmail[dot]com":

Previous to the above referenced fax from MSN, a second search warrant was obtained for the same account, 08-125-M-01, this time the intent was to ensure Attachment A from the search warrant affidavit was included. (Attachment A was a more encompassing list of searchable items restricted from the search warrant face due to lack of space.) Because the brackets were still on the search warrant, a similar response to above was received.

Search Warrant 08-160-M-01, dated 3/04/2008, for "goldenphoenix111@hotmail.com":

On 03/04/2008, the search warrant was faxed to MSN. The response was received via FedEx on 03/08/2008. (This search warrant had the correct written form of the email account and reference to Attachment A.)

YAHOO!

On 02/14/2008, the search warrant was faxed to Yahoo!; and on 02/25/2007 the same search warrant with Attachment A was re-faxed. On 02/26/2008 a fax was received from Yahoo! explaining that "BRUCE IVINS" could not be connected to a specific Yahoo! subscriber (internal reference number 96365). (The subscriber name for the account was "Golden Phoenix.")

On 02/26/2008, a separate person from Yahoo! contacted SA to notify her that they had received the search warrant and information for the accounts would be sent to her physical address. On 2/28/2008, Yahoo! again contacted SA confirmed her physical location, and shipped the results of the search via FedEx on 03/04/2008 (internal reference number 96949). The mail item was received on 3/07/2008 by SA AOL

Search Warrant 08-083-M-01, dated 2/14/2008, for "kingbadger7@aol.com":

On 2/18/2008, AOL was served with a search warrant for the above account. On 2/20/2008, AOL notified WFO that because the language on the search warrant was specific, "electronic mail between Bruce Ivins and other individuals," they would only provide that information.

Search Warrant 08-124-M-01, dated 2/22/2008, for "kingbadger7@aol.com":

On 2/25/2008, AOL was served with a search warrant for the above account. On 03/03/2008, AOL provided the requested information on a CD. Upon SA receipt of the disks, she was notified that because BRUCE IVINS was the main account holder, any sub-accounts that were under his name, were also included in the search warrant. These sub-accounts belonged to Ultimately it was decided that the capture of these sub-accounts was beyond the scope of the intended request of the initial search warrant. On 3/11/2008, AOL was requested to provide only BRUCE IVINS' account information, without the sub-accounts.

That same day AOL returned a CD that was supposed to capture the info, however the disk did not contain any information. Another request to AOL was made that day. On 3/18/08 another CD from AOL was received with no information; or, an inactive link to the search warrant information. Therefore a review of the data was not possible. AOL was again requested to provide another CD of the data. The CD with the correct data was received on 3/21/2008 and was able to be reviewed.
